Long COVID in Kids and Teens: New Study Challenges Mainstream Narrative

A new study by U.K. researchers revealed that although a percentage of people who contract COVID-19 develop persistent symptoms — and those symptoms are real — in most young people, the symptoms resolve on their own.

A new study by U.K. researchers sheds light on the complex nature of so-called “long COVID” symptoms in young persons. The prospective study revealed that although a percentage of people who contract COVID-19 develop persistent symptoms — and those symptoms are real — in most young people, the symptoms resolve on their own.

According to the researchers, the attribution of persistent symptoms solely to COVID-19 is ill-founded and has been exaggerated through the use of cross-sectional studies that don't follow participants over time.

The researchers' findings, published earlier this month in The Lancet Regional Health — Europe, stand in contrast to the widely held perception that debilitating symptoms following COVID-19 are frequent and enduring.

Dr. Vinay Prasad, a hematologist-oncologist and professor in the Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics at the University of California, San Francisco, offers a summary of the paper here.

Study limitations

The study involved two large groups of children and young people (CYP), ages 11-17, who were followed for a year after presenting for a COVID-19 PCR test.

Although approximately two-thirds of the participants were vaccinated, the study did not compare the incidence of long COVID symptoms with regard to vaccination status. We are thus unable to determine whether COVID-19 vaccines contribute to — or mitigate — the risk of long COVID.

Study strengths

This unique study had three important strengths. First, the incidence of symptoms among those who contracted COVID-19 is comparable to what has been shown in other studies of adolescents. This lends credibility to the results.

Second, participants in the study were observed for a full year in what is called a longitudinal study. This is in contrast to surveying people at various elapsed times since infection (a cross-sectional study).

This allows us to determine whether those who report post-infection symptoms remain debilitated or whether they get better over time.

Third, the researchers also followed a matched group of CYP who did not contract COVID-19 during the same observation period. This allowed them to estimate how many of the reported symptoms were not actually due to COVID-19 but originated from other factors present in both groups.

Findings

The study involved a sample of 5,086 non-hospitalized CYP ages 11-17. Of those, 2,909 were SARS-CoV-2-positive at baseline and 2,177 were SARS-CoV-2-negative.

The two groups matched by age, sex and geography.

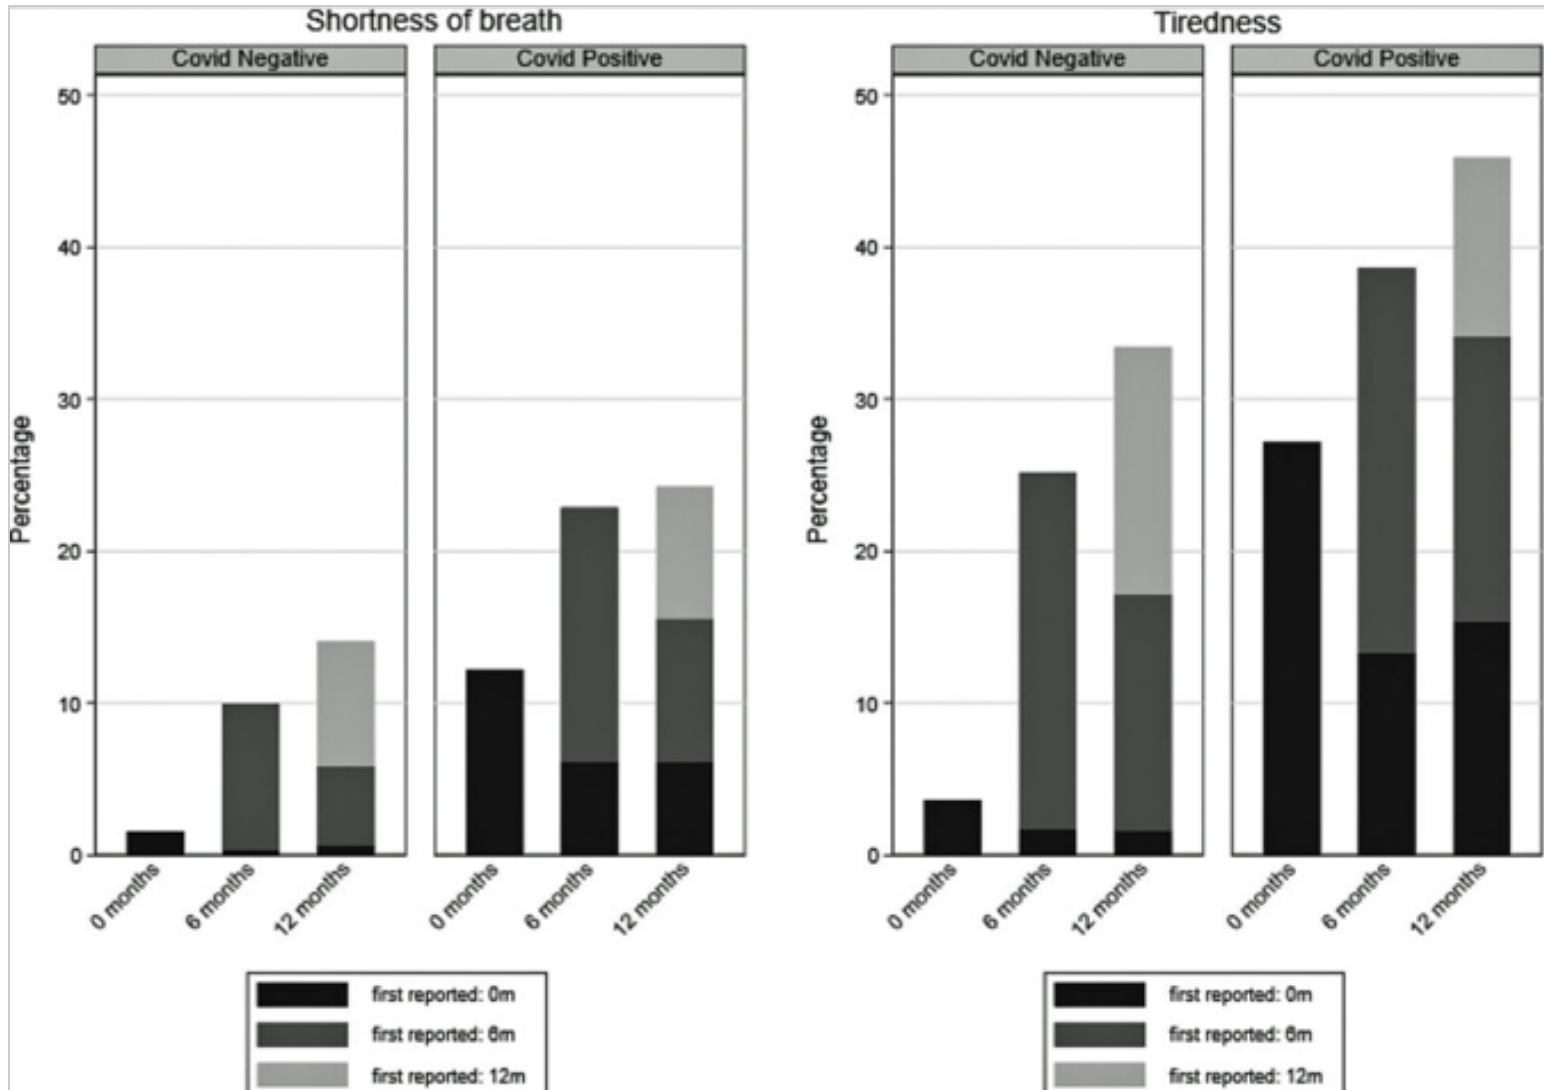

Each participant in the study self-reported various symptoms of “long COVID” at zero, six and 12 months from enrollment.

The researchers assessed 21 separate symptoms. Of those, only two increased in prevalence over the 12-month observational period: shortness of breath and fatigue.

Let's first examine these two symptoms more closely to demonstrate how this study offers something revelatory.

If, as in other studies, the prevalence of these two symptoms were simply given as a cross-section at each time, we would conclude that those unfortunate to suffer these long-haul symptoms didn't get better and, in fact, got worse.

However, because the study was longitudinal and had a non-COVID-19 cohort, we instead see this:

Credit: Snehal M. Pinto Pereira et al.

For each symptom, the percentage of those who were COVID-19-negative appears to the left of those who were COVID-19-positive. This is what we find:

- The incidence of these two symptoms in the COVID-19-positive group is higher than in the group that tested negative for the virus. This points to the fact that SARS-CoV-2 infection increases the likelihood of these two symptoms.
- The percentage of each cohort that suffers either of these two symptoms grows over the year, however ...
- These symptoms increase whether or not the participant had COVID-19, and ...
- Each bar in each graph is composed of three different populations — those who first reported the symptom immediately (black), those who reported the symptom only after six months (dark gray) and those who reported the symptom only after 12 months (light gray). We see that those who immediately reported the symptom got better over time.

From this, we can conclude that because the black portion of the bars in the COVID-19 group is smaller as time passes, these symptoms are resolving over time.

However, as noted above, the percentage of CYP suffering these symptoms as a whole gets larger. This is because previously asymptomatic participants are reporting new-onset symptoms six and 12 months later.

Are these new symptoms from the bout with COVID-19 experienced six and 12 months prior? This is where having a COVID-19-negative cohort becomes useful.

Because the size of the dark gray and light gray portions of each bar is roughly the same between the two cohorts, we can reasonably conclude that these delayed-onset symptoms are largely due to factors unrelated to infection.

Examining the data more closely, for symptoms initially reported, those with COVID-19 had a greater prevalence after 12 months (5.4% for shortness of breath and 13.8% for tiredness) compared to those who were COVID-19-negative.

On the other hand, the COVID-19-negative cohort reported more tiredness after 12 months than the COVID-19-positive cohort.

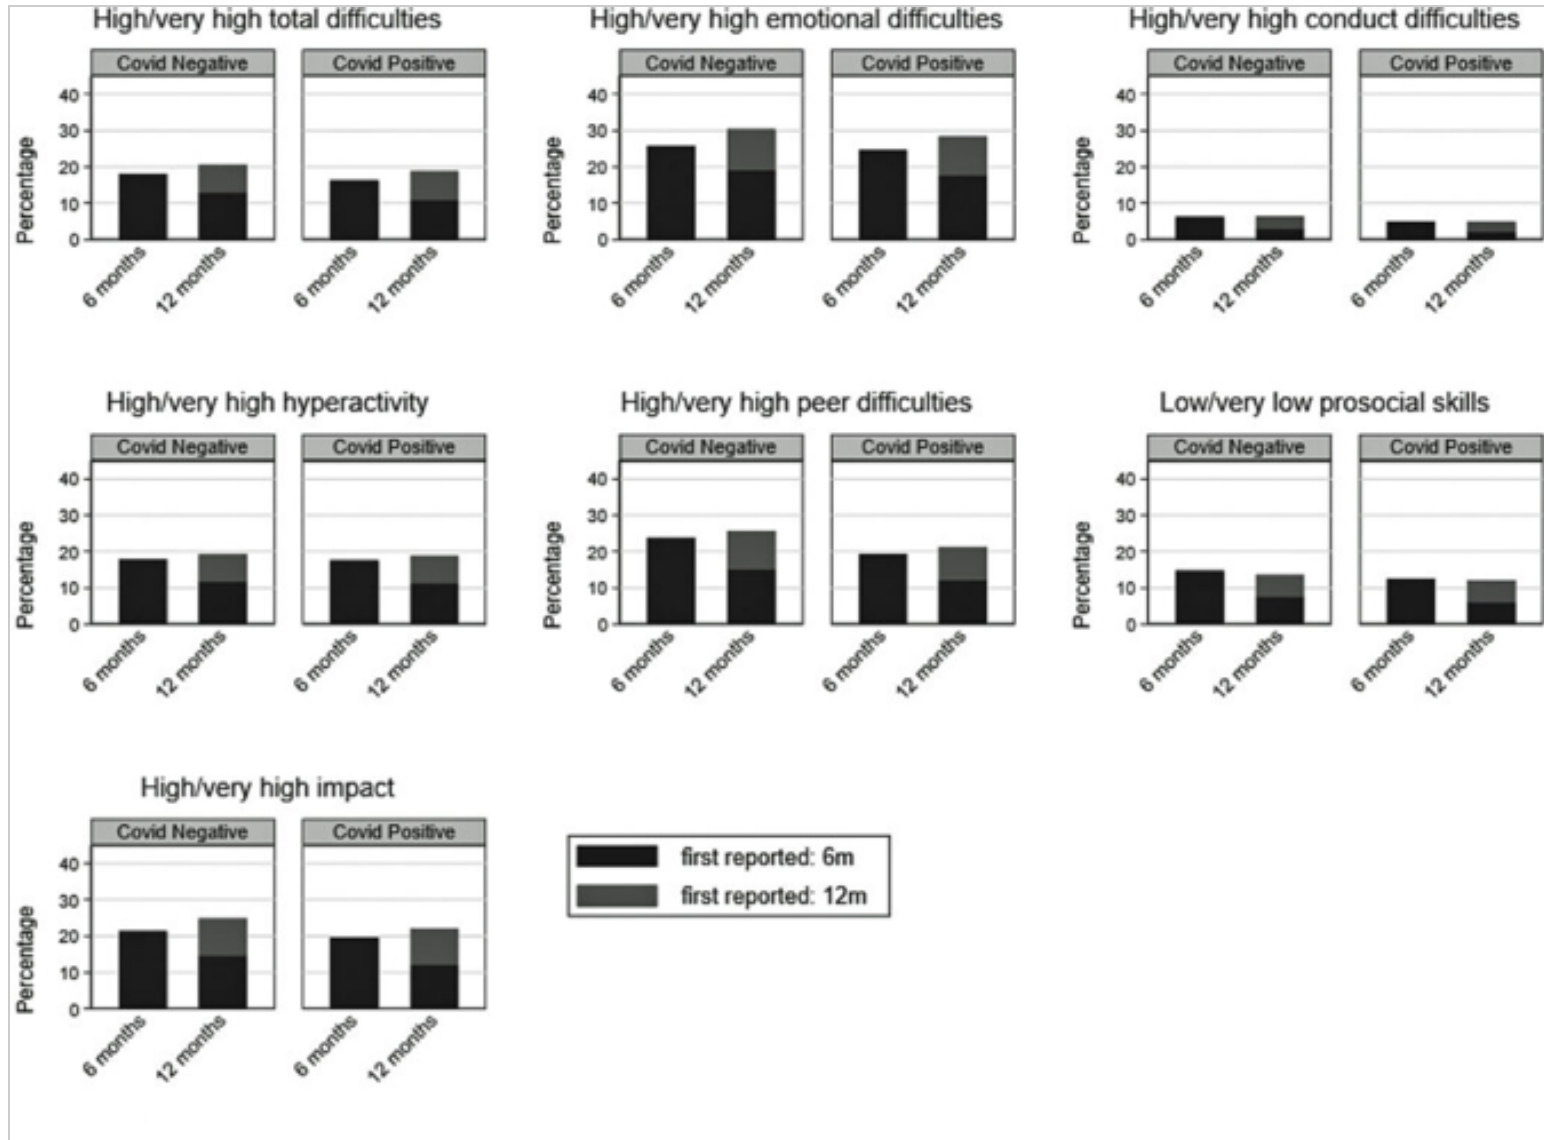

This pattern held true for the other measured symptoms as well. The authors state in their discussion:

“The results show that aggregating across all three time points, adverse symptoms were generally more common in test-positive compared to test-negative CYP. The majority of test-positive CYP who had a particular adverse symptom at testing were free from that symptom at both 6- and 12-months post-test, demonstrating that these symptoms generally improved over time.

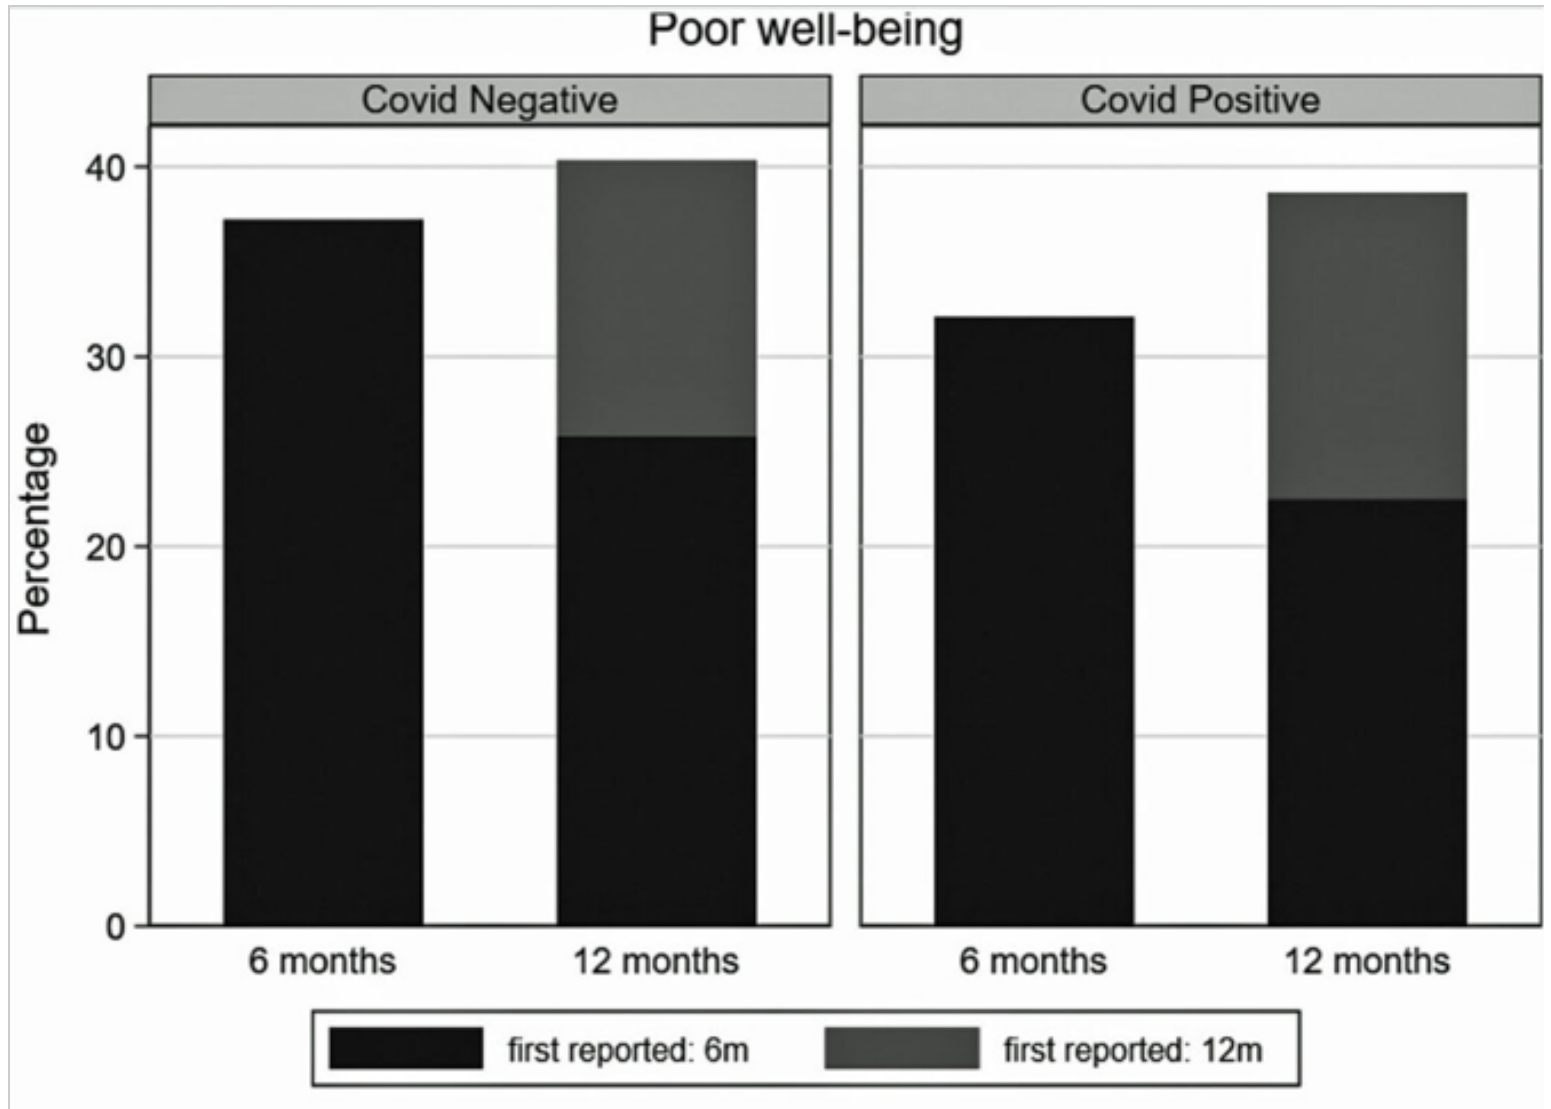

“Additionally, most CYP who first developed a particular symptom 6-months after their positive (or negative) PCR-test did not report that symptom at 12-months. We also found in the sub-sample with data collected at 3-, 6- and 12-months post-test, broadly similar patterns and results.”

Long-term effects

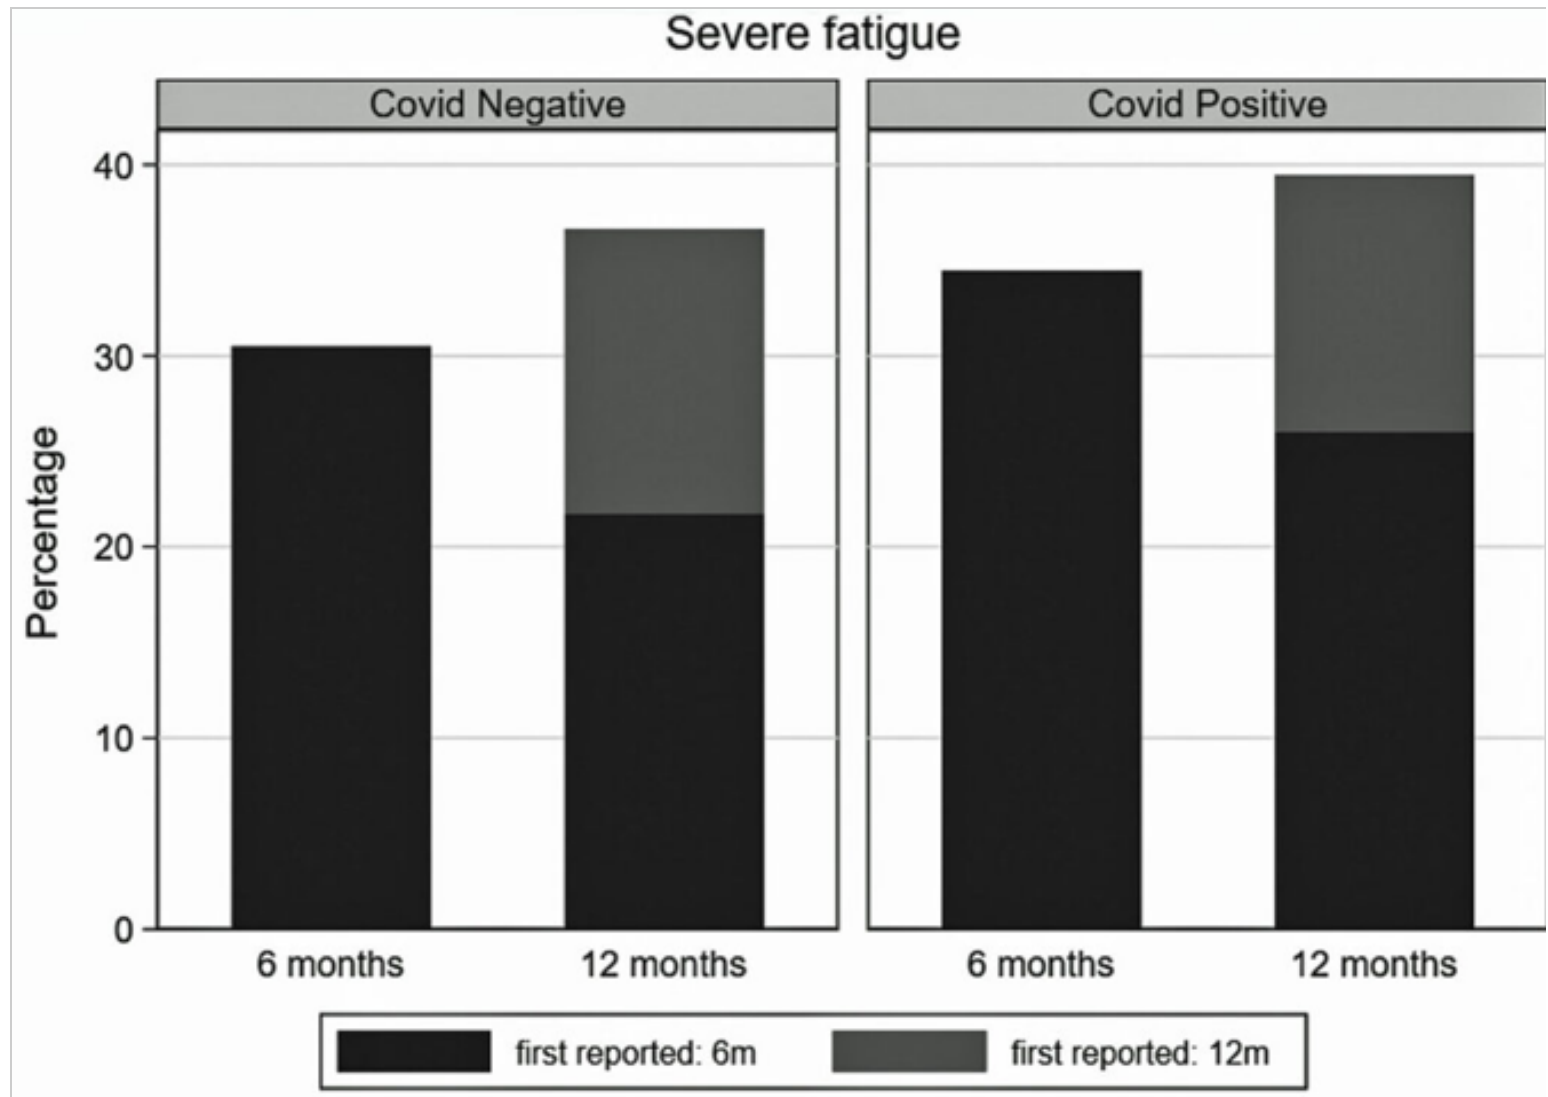

The researchers also examined the prevalence of symptoms that manifested six and 12 months after enrollment. These cover areas of mental health, well-being and fatigue. Note the consistency between the two groups in every measure:

Credit: Snehal M. Pinto Pereira et al.

Credit: Snehal M. Pinto Pereira et al.

Credit: Snehal M. Pinto Pereira et al.

Conclusions

The authors summarize:

“Our consistent and robust findings across a diverse range of health and well-being measures emphasises (i) the close relationship between physical and mental health and (ii) the value of repeated measures over time in the same individuals.

“Taking all the data in consideration, we found that if we had simply looked at cross-sectional prevalence’s (sic) at baseline, 3- (in the sub-sample), 6- and 12-months, it would have appeared as if the prevalence of several adverse post-COVID-symptoms remained largely stable, or even increased, over time. In fact, most (but not all) CYP recovered from the adverse symptoms which they experienced at baseline and 6-months post-infection.

“However, the reporting of new onset of these same symptoms at 6- and 12-months follow-up by both test-positive and test-negative CYP suggests that these symptoms may be causally related to multiple factors and not just the original SARS-COV-2 infection. For example, the development of new symptoms 6- or 12-months after their SARS-COV-2 PCR-test in both test-positives and test-negatives could represent background levels of symptomatology in CYP in England.”

From my own pov, this study is anemic b/c it doesn't compare vax status among the cohorts. Without stratification, the data is mush. I say this because the differences between the cohorts COULD have been altered by vax status.

For instance, if one cohort was more heavily vaxed than the other, it could sway the findings one way or the other. Without that variable, the conclusions drawn are ASSUMING the two cohorts have the same vax status. Definitely, it could have no bearing, but without that compare, the data becomes unconvincing.

I hope we get better studies on this. I'm mostly concerned because the medical industrial complex has a long history of gas-lighting the patient instead of helping them. Here I'm alluding to their sordid past (and current practices) history of telling lyme's, chronic fatigue, jab injured and the like that they are "anxious." Or they are depressed, rather than taking them seriously and actually helping. In other words, many health care providers ignore people's complaints and attribute everything to anxiety.

All to say, I'll trust the study more if they do their diligence and include the vax status.
Peace

tshann, Yes! This study unfortunately, perhaps deliberately, for big-pharma profit violates Medical Experimental Intervention & Emergency Use Authorization protocol. Medical Science used to be based on assuming a baseline of healthy-robust immunity. In medical experiments, first attribution of Adverse Events & death is put on any artificial or experimental interventions, which must rigorously prove its innocence. i.e. EXPERIMENTAL INTERVENTIONS ARE GUILTY UNTIL PROVEN INNOCENT.

With control of media & studies like this, the Medical-Industrial-complex MeIC has been able to indoctrinate the large portion of the population, including parent guardians of our youth, to reverse attribution, by projecting illness as the norm & attributing illness to bad god-given design. Our system is owned by a despondent-schizophrenic gumption by command of central false 'money' (Greek 'mnemosiis' = 'memory') oligarchs. The world orchestrated 'roll-out' of COVID-19 & inoculations is massive & centrally commanded in terms of institution & profession capture. Oligarchs base their propaganda without any bio-statistical or epidemiological fact or merit. Oligarchs reverse perceived medical obligation & responsibility in holistic (interdisciplinary) Natural Science. Medical-science violation is not only alarming but very damaging & indeed murderous to whole populations. <https://sites.google.com/si...> & <https://sites.google.com/si...>

Ridiculous nonsense! There is no such thing as "Long COVID."

But strangely enough, all the symptoms attributed to the lie of "Long COVID" are exactly the same as those caused by Long Vax, not to mention Long Mask Wearing, Long Swab Sticks and Long Stupid Belief in Fake Science, all of which contain toxic ingredients such as Graphene Oxide.

Absolutely staggering that CHD are still trotting out the deranged and defunct narrative of mainstream frauds whose primary function is to deceive.

Utterly reprehensible that CHD are still propping up the clueless assumption that PCR Test results actually mean anything. What? After all this time, and still none of you dishonest hacks are asking the most basic questions of the central tool of the whole con? Have you never heard of Kary Mullis or the Corman-Drosten Report? Ever seen this film? <https://www.bitchute.com/vi...>

No, I'm sorry - I've been very reluctant to come to this conclusion - but there's only so far credulity can be stretched before one has to say, it's either sheer blithering idiocy or wilful blindness. Either way, CHD should NOT be regarded as leaders of "truth."

Ricky, I believe they sent Nobel Prize winner, Kary Mullis, to an early grave . His death from pneumonia IMO was an assassination. If he was alive today, he would be on every available media outlet telling the people that he invented the PCR and that Fauci is using a tool that wasn't designed to be used in the way their using it. Mullis would also let it be known to the general public that Fauci messed up the AIDS crisis and killed a lot of patients with his recommendation of AZT.

"Long Covid" is as fictional as "Covid" itself.

That we were first hearing about "long covid" only a few months after the Covid Operation was unleashed was a signal to anyone paying attention. That this was being floated by a Gates funded University alerted everyone to the fact that this wasn't a clinical condition it was just another aspect of the Psyop.

It's imperative that everyone stop ceding ground to these fascists by reifying the Big Lie that "Covid" is a unique disease and that it is responsible for a global pandemic.

"Covid" the disease is pure fiction. All the rest of it (biolabs / batsoup / bioweapons / lableaks) is political theatre and bread and circuses. They gamed the system to code for "covid deaths."

This has never had anything to with what is nothing more than a computer-generated genome falsely attributed to a novel pathogen. It is a global conspiracy by the worlds transnational ruling class which was planned out and war-gamed at the WEF, the central bankers summit in Jackson Hole, and at Event 201.

Once you get people to assent to a world that makes no sense you can get them to do anything. That's precisely what the Covid Cult is: it competes with the real world. Strategy of tension, mass mind manipulation, a psychological operation, the general population hypnotised right in front of your eyes.

Covid-19 is the biggest money laundering/racketeering scheme in the history of this country.

Ben Franklin → Richard Greenwood ⌚ 14 days ago — 🚩

Promoting Covid at all is deceptive also. No one has ever isolated or purified "covid" as the real culprit is a lipid encapsulated bacterium of some sort; a military bio-weapon. However, a group of scientists write, "First, in the section titled 'Whole Genome Sequencing,' we find that rather than having isolated the virus and sequencing the genome from end to end, they found 37 base pairs from unpurified samples using PCR probes. This means they actually looked at 37 out of the approximately 30,000 of the base pairs that are claimed to be the genome of the intact virus. They then took these 37 segments and put them into a computer program, which filled in the rest of the base pairs."

In other words, the sequencing of the SARS-CoV-2 virus was done by assumption and arbitrary inference. If this is science, a penguin is a spaceship.

Another thing that is covered up is Snake Island. Snake Island was home to a bioweapons lab run by the Israeli Health Ministry and the MOSSAD. They were working on an aerosolized version of rabies which, if successful, would have had a worldwide mortality rate of nearly 100%. The Russians rightfully destroyed it. But THAT narrative, aka the truth, isn't ever promoted, is it?

Richard didn't call you a traitor, did he? There can be a million narratives, but only one truth. I've been following Robert F. Kennedy Jr. since buying and reading his book, Crimes Against Nature, in the 1990s. What is it you dislike? No one will come to your site if you continue to censor them, and promote only YOUR narrative. If I say that all 66 CDC vaccination doses for every child by the age of five is deadly for them, and that the average age for childhood cancer is age six, is that true, or not? That's what you have to consider, not upsetting them so much that they stop their financial support. I recently bought RFK Jr's book, The Real Anthony Fauci. Would you like me to continue supporting the Defender, or just stop coming here altogether, and stop sharing your articles with everyone I know? It's a serious question. Because no one will come here at all, and the comment section is wanting as it is... Don't you agree?

This extensive war on children is so diabolical that it's hard to believe but the demons keep developing new ways of killing or damaging children's health, minds, and destroying their souls.

Now there is a company called Ectolife that is building "pods" to grow human babies claiming it can safely bring a human baby to term. You can even select the hair and eye color, skin shade, strength, and intelligence of "your child." Is this for real? Yes, they have a website.

The founder says the technology exists but the only thing stopping this are ethical considerations. How nice!

So on the one hand, the murder and destruction of children is in an all out war and on the other hand, there is a push to develop "designer babies" outside of a woman's womb. Can anything get crazier? Of course it can and it will.

The vax status was not given the consideration that it should have been given. Because the vax causes the patient to produce viral spike protein with no known cut off time it is possible that "long covid" may be the response to continued exposure to this toxic protein as opposed to naturally acquired infection in which the spike protein is cleared by the body's own defenses. But I am not going to hold my breath waiting for this study to be done.

If you ain't seeing what is going on, try reading obits and explain to me the surge of people that are dying suddenly, unexpectedly and in most cases at home. Many in their 30's and 40's. Normal? Then study the athletics that are dropping dead, people on the street, news casters, celebrities, entertainers that are dropping dead on stage. Funny, how often do you see a world leader (Cabal) drop dead? Ever? Try never! I can guarantee you that "long COVID" is VERY real. I have been recovering for just shy of a year now. I was on a ventilator for 3 months, in hospital beds for 5 plus, and am still recovering at home. Fortunately, I am in IT and can work from home. My lungs, as of my last CT scan, are pretty much Swiss cheese and will never be what they were before this happened. I have also been in cardiac "AFIB" since one of my lungs collapsed about a month in on the vent. I was given a one percent chance of survival and beat the odds. After all that I've been through, I still consider the vax to be poison and a bio-weapon. Consider yourselves fortunate that you didn't have to experience what I did.

My oxygen saturation was 74, had major breathing problems, and still I didn't go to a death camp, AKA hospital If i would have, I wouldn't be here. I used homeopathic remedies, the Zelenko protocol and Ivermectin with supplemental oxygen and spent many night sitting up and trying to breathe. My wife, not vaccinated, (very immune compromised) got Covid and long Covid, many many symptoms including sudden complete hearing loss in one ear, plus tinnitus. (also a common report or symptom in VAERS data) There are literally many dozens of papers showing harms caused by the spike protein, which, if it goes systemic, can cause most every harm the vaccine spike also causes. The no virus, and no long haul crowd is simply wrong. It, the virus, is almost certainly man made, is not a flu, and can harm in many ways. The vaccine is likely worse. The same folk likely created and funded both.

This study is a complete failure, as it does not differentiate between vaccinated and unvaccinated, as the vaccinated can have all the covid harms, and more, as it goes systemic right away. (So the high negative Covid cohort, still had the spike protein from the jabs. Assuming that perhaps 20 percent of the entire study were both Covid negative and vaccine negative, that may be the only reason the numbers were reduced in the Non Covid positive.

Also believe it or not the hospitals no longer want to admit they screwed

Your theory could be quite valid. I know of an unvaccinated health practitioner who died suddenly. His wife feels that it was an issue caused by shedding. IMO this is truly biological warfare. Giving the soft treatment to Fauci, Gates, Collins, and the other poison peddlers is like pouring a gallon of water on a raging forest fire. The few people I know who have been vaccinated and have symptoms of long covid are in denial, stating comments like, "it wasn't caused by the vax. It was caused by covid. My doctor said so." More than likely their doctor also received a stipend for giving the jab.

The information in this study..states that 2 thirds of the participants in this study were covid vaccinated.How can a scientific method of analysis be valid without including this fact.Its as if the study goes on an endless search of possibilities and even comes up with a subset of ppl.who presented .covid negative from pcr test..who at end of study..had same 2 symptoms-of Long Covid..Severe Fatigue.And since theres a presumption that pcr test is benign&accurate-when so much fact by highly credentialed medical researchers to the contrary..This "study" is ridiculous - tainted and a mess..wit also a failure to include what other Autoimmune disorder-inducing vaccines participants have had..that cause chronic fatigue.
